Internet Access Opportunities in DC

Internet access is the first and most basic step to digital equity. DC residents in need of in-home internet subscription assistance have several options available to them: Internet for All provided by the Bowser Administration and the new Federal Communications Council Emergency Broadband Benefits program.

Which Internet Program Is Right for You?

Internet for All: DC Students (Text INTERNET to 69866)

What You Get:

One year of Comcast Internet Essentials or RCN's Internet First paid for by DC Government.

Why Choose Me:

- You have a PK3-12th grade student(s) enrolled at a DC traditional, charter public schools or adult charter school
- You need one year of internet access
- Your home is covered by RCN or Comcast
- 50 Mbps of internet speed is enough for your household needs

Find Out if You're Eligible:

- Visit techtogetherdc.com/internetforall

FCC Emergency Broadband Benefit (EBB) Program

What You Get:

A temporary discount on monthly broadband bills for qualifying low-income households.

Why Choose Me:

- You do not have a student enrolled in DC traditional or Public Charter Schools
- You need device assistance (up to $100) in addition to Internet for All
- Your household needs a higher speed internet than Internet Essentials (Comcast) or Internet First (RCN), which are both 50 Mbps, provides.

Find Out if You're Eligible:

- Visit fcc.gov/broadbandbenefit

techtogether.dc.gov/internetforall

octo
office of the chief technology officer

WE ARE WASHINGTON
GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
DC MURIEL BOWSER, MAYOR